If you're at the lowest part of your life just remember it won't be as low as Meshuggah's guitar tuning

It's always 4/4 if you count hard enough

"How do you guys get your massive guitar sound?"

"Simple, we plug our guitars into mountains that make earthquakes."

And Tomas Haake will still try to tell you it's an easy 4/4 riff

When your bandmate accidentally plays a Cm/maj9add6add11(b13)+11/E instead of Cm/maj9add6add11(#13)+11/E and you notice it

Fredrik Thordendal, lead guitarist of Swedish band Meshuggah, coined the term.^[4] In a 2018 interview by Rauta, Meshuggah guitarist Mårten Hagström apologized for the band's role in creating the "djent" style of guitar playing, calling it "a drunk misunderstanding".^{[5][6]}
